

World Population Stripes

This map shows the world population along a latitudinal gradient from North to South. Each stripe represents the distribution of the human population and covers 25 km in width.

